POLITICAL NOTES.

—Hartranft and Rawle clubs will be organized in every town borough in this county.—Cameron County Press.

—The Democratic Senatorial conference will meet in the Columbia district on the 14th of October, to nominate a candidate for Senator. Allen, of Lycoming; Chalfant, of Montour; Barclay, of Columbia, and Jackson, of Sullivan, are the competitors.

—While Mr. Piollett was speaking at the pic-nic on Saturday, a copperhead snake crawled from under the platform, and was killed by the farmers. They do tell us there were Copperheads under the Erie platform. The people will be sure to "scotch" them on election day.—Pottsville Journal.

—The Philadelphia Times, a guerilla Democratic sheet sailing under an "Independent" flag, commenting upon Piollett's letter of acceptance and promises of great things in the way of reform, expresses the opinion that "his contract may be a little large." Well, his extended experience with contracts on the State canals should help him out.

—A gentleman writing from Johnstown, Pershing's old home, says: "To put Mr. Pershing forward as a reformer is the height of absurdity. No one here will pretend that he ever was known to vote anything but a party ticket; he was always hand and glove with the lowest, meanest and most violent element of his own party, and was the leader of the corrupt ring which controls this county."

—The Republican party took the tax [illegible] of the real estate in Pennsylvania, and it has lightened the popular burden year after year by reducing the debt. But whenever the Democratic party has been in power the debt has increased. Will the horny-handed Piollett do any better, if he is elected, than the Democratic predecessors, seeing that he will have to satisfy a swarm of politicians who have been out of office and hungry for years?—Philadelphia Bulletin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Who were the bolters in the Democratic party one year ago?

Answer—C. T. Alexander and P. G. Meek.

Who furnished the paper to publish that celebrated short-lived sheet, the True Democrat?

Answer—P. G. Meek.

Who, immediately after the Democratic senatorial conference nominated Hon. W. W. Wallace for State Senate, last year, urged C. T. Alexander to bolt the Democratic congressional conference, and promised him the support of the Watchman?

Answer—P. G. Meek.

Who stand at the head of the Democratic party in Centre county this fall, and control the organization?

Answer—P. G. Meek and C. T. Alexander.

Who run the Democratic party in their own interests in Centre county?

Answer—Meek and Alexander.

How do Meek and Alexander intend to maintain their ascendency and control of the Democratic party in Centre county?

Answer—By securing the election of all their special nominees in Centre county.

How does Meek expect to secure the further control of the commissioner's office, the county printing, and the printing of the county officers?

Answer—By making Musser the Democratic candidate for treasurer, and the others believe their election is doubtful, and he insure it for a consideration.

How much consideration from Musser for securing his election?

Answer—Five hundred dollars cash, and all the public printing pertaining to the office.

How does he scheme to secure his election?

Answer—He hires Bill Brown, Levi Miller, Bill Blair and Posey Bachelor to bust up the Junior Sons organization, that was pledged to support Bayard for treasurer, Munson for sheriff, etc., by setting up that organization in favor of an independent straight-out ticket.

How much does he pay Brown?

Answer—A suit of new clothes and traveling expenses. The same consideration that got him to make Clymer speeches in 1866. Brown's exact price for dirty and treacherous work.

How much to Blair?

Answer—No special pecuniary sum, but when he (Blair) again gets to be candidate for the legislature on the prohibition ticket, he will not say anything harsh about him. He won't touch up his peculiar temperance record when a legislator a long time ago, nor say anything about his successful operation while he served the dear people and Uncle Sam as Provost Marshall, nor suggest to the people how many government bonds he piled up while such officiate.

How much to Levi Miller?

Answer—Somewhere between 150 and 200 dollars, and promises of future help politically, when Levi gets the nomination of the Republican party for sheriff, county treasurer, or something else.

How many times will Brown, Blair, Bachelor & Co., through Meek's manipulations, be able, as the great labor and temperance reformers of the age, to sell out the organization known as the Junior Sons of '76?

Answer—In our judgment, about no more.

Why?

Answer—Because the sensible and thinking men of that organization see through the trick and will no longer suffer themselves to be made the dupes of their unprincipled demagogueism and base treachery.

At whose instance did the Junior Sons nominate but one candidate for county commissioner, and that one a Democrat?

Answer—At the instance and direction of P. G. Meek.

Will Republicans and honest citizens of Centre county permit P. G. Meek, with such satellites as Bill Brown, Bill Blair, B. L. Bachelor and Levi A. Miller, to secure the election of three Democratic county commissioners, and thus deprive Republicans of their right to minority representation under the new constitution?

Answer—We think not.

Is not A. Bartholomew, the Junior Sons' candidate for commissioner, a rank Democrat?

Answer—Yes, he is; and if elected, would be elected as a Democrat.

If Meek, through the Junior Sons, under the control of his special henchmen—Bill Blair, Bill Brown, B. L. Bachelor and Levi Miller—should succeed in electing three Democratic county commissioners, how much would he filch from the county annually for printing?

Answer—If he increases in the future in the same proportion as the past, he would get about $3000 per year from the commissioners' office.

Would the accounts of the commissioners' office, and the seventy-thousand-dollar jail swindle be unearthed and the people shown how they have been robbed?

Answer—Never. That is what Meek fears—investigation.

If Musser suffered Meek to filch $500 out of him to secure his election, could Musser, if elected under the circumstances, under the new constitution, serve as county treasurer?

Answer—We think not. The new constitution says: "Any person who shall, while a candidate for office, be guilty of bribing, fraud, or willful violation of any election law, shall be forever disqualified from holding an office of trust or profit in this Commonwealth."

If Musser should not be elected, or should the Democrats on the other side of the mountain see proper to Modoc on the sheriff, and either one or the other candidates be defeated, how would it effect Meek and Alexander as the controling power and bosses of the Democratic party in Centre county?

Answer—Well, it would clip their political wings, and their prestige would be gone. It would teach them that they could not bolt from the party one year, and the next run it to suit themselves.

If Meek and Alexander are not pruned of some of their political plumage this fall, and all their special candidates elected, what will they do in the future?

Answer—They will make every Democrat in the county make obeisance to them and do their bidding with an obsciquiousness that would be debasing to the variest slave. They would take occasion to bolt whenever they did not have the pleasure and profit of running the thing, and would compel the Democrats to take them back the next campaign and make them candidates for the Senate and chairman of the county convention.

Will the Democrats of Centre, who have been deceived, cheated, swindled, and sold out repeatedly by Meek, help him with his allied powers—Bill Blair, Bill Brown, B. L. Bachelor, the Massachusetts Democrat, and Levi Miller—to maintain his political supremacy in Centre county, and to rule the party with an iron rod, and use the party as a machine to confer upon himself political aggrandizement and pecuniary profit?

Answer—If they have any respect for their independence and manhood, we think not.

Will squire Herring, Yony Kramer, and other true Democrats, suffer Meek to use them as mere playthings any longer?

Answer—If they do they should no longer be called men.

Let Republicans and all honest citizens, who are in favor of honest and independent officials, those who are not under the control of any ring, or under the control of Meek and his special henchmen and dirty workers,—Brown, Blair, Bachelor, Sternberg & Co.—resolve to eject from the political arena such a beautiful set of political demagogues, and on the 2d of November next, go to the polls and cast their ballots for good men, who can in no way be influenced or controled by the above named posies, who assume to be the great temperance and labor reformers of Centre county.

WHAT THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT MEANS.

Mr. James Black, chairman of the Prohibition State Committee, has recently removed Mr. Charles Heritage from his committee, because Mr. Heritage declines to support Brown and Pennypacker. Mr. H. is recognized as one of the ablest and most thorough temperance men in the State. As editor of the Temperance Blessing, he has been looked upon as the temperance champion of the State. After receiving a letter from Mr. Black notifying him of his removal from the committee, he wrote an open letter in reply, in which he puts the matter in its true light. The letters in full can be found on the inside of this paper, and are well worth a careful perusal, but we desire to call particular attention to some points. He says:

"It is true that I did attend the State convention of the Prohibition party at Harrisburg, took part in its proceedings, and expressed myself satisfied with the candidates nominated. I believed then, and still believe, that Messrs. Browne and Pennypacker are sincere, able and devoted advocates of Christian temperance reform. But as soon as you and your committee commenced to "lay the wires" for a campaign in Pennsylvania, I saw that your object was alone the gratification of personal ambition and animosity. Almost your first step was an announcement that your purpose and desire was simply the defeat of the Republican candidate for governor. * * I became convinced, as did thousands of others, that the cause of temperance, a cause only second in sacredness to that of the Christian religion, could not and should not be prostituted to individual purposes; that it would be both sinful and silly to render it, by perversion and trickery, an aid to the success of the Democratic party, an organization that by precept and practice is and always has been as diametrically opposed to temperance reform as infidelity is to Christianity."

The subsequent part of the letter denounces the whole temperance campaign, as carried on in Pennsylvania, as "a flimsy cheat."—that the Prohibition leaders have confessed that their purpose is nothing more nor less than to defeat Governor Hartranft. Mr. Heritage continues: "In doing this you will succeed, if you succeed at all, in alienating the friendship of the great Republican party from the temperance movement in Pennsylvania; and when this end is accomplished, where are we to look for that aid in our work which we have so long hoped and prayed for and which we so much need? Certainly we can expect nothing from the Democratic party of this State, as that party is openly and avowedly against us. The work you have in hand, therefore, is designed according to your showing, to result in serious, almost irreparable injury to a cause which has all my sympathy, all my devotion, and to which I have given years of hard and thankless labor."

This is the only view that every reasonable man must take of this matter. It is a Democratic scheme to defeat Governor Hartranft. Nothing more; nothing less. General Wm. H. Blair is the member for Centre county of the Prohibition State Committee. He is organizing the campaign, not in the interest of the cause of temperance, but in the interest of the Democratic party. His henchmen are, like himself, Democrats. The Republicans that side with him are mainly strong temperance men whom he has deluded into the idea that it will help the temperance cause. What good can it accomplish in the State this fall? Brown and Pennypacker have no earthly chance of being elected. If anything can be accomplished, it will be the defeat of the Republican party. Then the worst enemy that temperance reform ever had will be in power—the Democratic party—the party which the "Watchman" of last week boldly asserted was never run in the interest of temperance. Do not temperance people see this? When in the history of county, State or nation has there ever been an iota of Democratic legislation in favor of temperance? The dodge is so plain that a wayfaring man, though a fool, can not mistake. If there are any Republicans who want an excuse for voting against Gov. Hartranft, here is a good one. But we say, let the facts be known; let the Republicans of Centre county go into this Blair movement with their eyes open. If any temperance man is opposed to Governor Hartranft because he signed the repeal of the local option bill, let him aid in his defeat, and he will cut off his own nose to spite his own face. If temperance men do not believe these facts, let them follow on where Black and Blair and Brown lead, and they will learn, too late, of their folly, and repent at leisure.

VICTOR E. PIOLLETT.

Victor E. Piollett, the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, was nominated at Erie solely because he was a Granger. At the same time Mr. Piollett was canvassing the State as State Lecturer of the Grange organization, and at every meeting at which he spoke he took occasion to abuse both political parties as being unworthy of support, and included all classes of merchants and dealers as being unworthy of patronage.

To hear Mr. Piollett talk, one would suppose that he had spent a life[illegible] on his farm, and never had a gun-shot from home on any occasion—that he was one of fisted farmers of which So[illegible] of South Carolina, [illegible] which Senator Sumner gave him so[illegible] a scathing, and which was followed by Bully Brooks caning the Massachusetts Senator. Since Mr. Piollett's nomination, his true history is being shown up, which shows that he is a first-class impostor, so far as being a farmer is in the question. Mr. Piollett has always been an office-hunting politician, while his brother did the farming. He was one of the old canal rats, that filched millions out of the State treasury. He was one of the contractors that built the North Branch Canal, which passes by or through his lands in Bradford county. On the part of the work that he had an interest in, the estimated cost was about $700,000, yet it cost the State over one million dollars. The discrepancy was so great that Governor Bigler complained of it in his annual message of 1853. He has been a candidate for every office in the gift of the people of our State worth having; in short, he is a regular old sucker, trying to make capital out of the Pennsylvania Grangers; and he is a man whom of all others is the least entitled to their respect and support. Office is what he wants, and little does he care how he gets it. In his own county last fall he advised the grangers, to the detriment of consumers, to hold on to their produce and bull the market. At the same time he was selling the products of his farm at the market prices, which had been stimulated by others holding off, who, after a time were compelled to sell at lower prices than Piollett received. So much for his honesty and advice.

A gentleman from Bradford county informs us that the people there, of his native county, look upon him as being a regular old skinner. We advise the Grangers to look sharp after their leaders. Be careful to discard old political hacks. Keep out of politics. The history of our country shows that secret organizations that get into politics are very short lived. The Grange is a good institution as a Grange, but woe be unto it in the hands of such men as Mr. Piollett!

At the Democratic County Convention of Delaware county, held at Media, on the 23rd inst., the following ticket was nominated: Sheriff, John H. Rhodes; Commissioners, Edward Engle, of Chester, and J. H. Fields, of Media; District Attorney, W. H. Dickenson; Treasurer, S. N. Hill. Director of the Poor, Edward Beatty; Auditors, John B. McCay and Dr. Boon. A mass meeting was held after the adjournment, but it broke up in confusion, when an effort was made to secure the ratification of the entire Erie platform. Mr. John B. Rhodes, who was a delegate to the recent State Convention at Erie, earnestly opposed the soft-money plank. He expressed the hope that the Democrats of Delaware county would not thus stultify themselves and violate the traditions of their party. And they didn't.

Some of the Lilliput journals are engaged in huge efforts of special pleading and prevarication to prove that Mr. Pershing cast one vote somewhere in favor of the soldiers' right to vote. Suppose we admit the fact, what then? Is one vote for a measure to outweigh half a dozen ineffectual votes against it? And further suppose we should admit that Mr. Pershing earnestly and honestly labored to give the soldier his vote, what then? It only brings his record one inch nearer that of Hartranft's, but leaves him still miles behind the patriotic soldier who took an active and positive share in the defence of his imperilled country.—[Philadelphia Press.

VICTORY!

OHIO TO THE FRONT!

HAYES SWEEPS THE STATE BY 10,000 MAJORITY.

A STATE REDEEMED.

Republican Gains.

Cincinnati, the Democratic Stronghold, Gives 3,000 Majority for Hayes.

Our readers will receive the REPUBLICAN this week one day late, as we have held it back that we might give the result of the Ohio election. We feel confident that the glorious news which we chronicle will compensate our patrons for the delay.

Ohio has redeemed herself, and declared her want of faith in the Democracy to doctor up our financial matters. We have no doubt that the people in Ohio, as in this State, are in favor of a moderate increase of the volume of the currency, but they are not ready to allow the Democracy to obtain the power, that they may make their oft repeated prophecy true, that our currency was worthless, by a reckless and extravagant inflation of it. The party that made our present money are its only true protectors and guardians. Ohio has tried two years of Democratic miss-rule, and now she repudiates it. The grand army of Republican states are swinging into line for a glorious Republican victory in the great contest soon to come in 1876.

Below we give the returns as received at this office up to the time of going to press:

COLUMBUS, Oct. 13, 2:30 A. M.—Adams county, two townships, Hays 281, Allen 213; Dem. gain, 9. Allen county, three towns and Lima city entire, Hayes 804, Allen 1000; Dem. gain, 150. Ashtabula county, eight townships, Hayes 1902, Allen 561; Rep. gain, 628. Butler county, one township, Hays 56, Allen 162; Rep. gain, 5. Carrol county, one township, Hayes 93, Allen 56; Dem. gain, 13. Champlain county, one township, Hayes 161, Allen 29; Rep. gain, 20. Clark county, two townships and four wards in Springfield city, Hayes 2286, Allen 1574; Dem. gain, 153. Clinton county, one township, Hayes 157, Allen 96; Rep. gain, 82. Cuyahoga county, one township and five wards in Cleveland, Rep. gain, 1500. Durkee county, three townships, Hayes 273, Allen 399; Dem. gain, 29. Delaware county, one township, Hayes 53, Allen 37; Rep. gain, 6. Erie county, one township, Hayes 139, Allen 139; Dem. gain, 19. Fairfield county, four townships and Tanister city, Rep. gain, 61. Fayette county, two townships, Hayes 180, Allen 186; Dem. gain, 17. Franklin county, three townships and three wards in Columbus, Hayes 1888, Allen 1124; Rep. gain, 610. Fulton county, one township, Hayes 133.

Total Republican gains, as far as heard from, 2912; Democratic gains, as far as heard from, 392; leaving a balance in our favor of 2520.

LATER, 6 A. M.—Cuyahoga county has gone 5,000 for Hayes; Hamilton Co., which includes the city of Cincinnati, and which has always heretofore been Democratic, has gone Republican by 2500 majority.

LATEST—William Shortlidge, Esq., of this place, received the following dispatch from our townsman, James Milliken, who is in New York:

NEW YORK, October 13, 1875.

William Shortlidge, Esq.:—Ohio Republican majority about ten thousand in favor of our friend Hayes. JAMES MILLIKEN.

The Game of Life.

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

There's a game much in fashion—I think it's called Euchre;
(Though I never have played it for pleasure or lucre)
In which when the cards are in certain condition,
The players appear to have changed their positions,
And one of them cries in a confident tone,
"I think I may venture to 'go it alone!'"

While watching the game, 'tis a whim of the bard's
A moral to draw from that skirmish of cards,
And to fancy he finds in the trivial strife
Some excellent hints for the battle of Life;
Where—whether the prize be a ribbon or throne—
The winner is he who can "go it alone!"

When great Galileo proclaimed that the world,
In a regular orbit was carelessly whirled,
And got—not a convert—for all of his pains,
But only derision and prison and chains,
"It moves, for all that!" was his answering tone,
For he knew, like the earth, he could "go it alone!"

When Kepler, with intellect piercing afar,
Discovered the laws of each planet and star,
And doctors, who ought to have lauded his name,
Derided his learning, and blackened his fame,
"I can wait!" he replied, "till the truth you shall own;"
For he felt in his heart he could "go it alone!"

Alas! for the player who idly depends,
In the struggle of life, upon kindred or friends;
Whatever the value of blessings like these,
They can never atone for inglorious ease,
Nor comfort the coward who finds with a groan
That his crutches have left him to "go it alone!"

There's something, no doubt, in the hand you may hold,
Health, family, culture, wit, beauty and gold
The fortunate owner may fairly regard
As, each in its way, a most excel[illegible]
Yet the game may be lost [illegible]
your own,
Unless you've the courage [illegible]

In battle or business, what [illegible]
In law or in love, it is ever t[illegible]
In the struggle for power, or the scramble for pelf,
Let this be your motto—"RELY ON YOURSELF!"
For, whether the prize be ribbon or throne,
The victor is he who can "go it alone!"

Our Story Teller.

The Bell of St. John's.

BY RUFUS SARGENT.

In a huge and smoky foundry close by the wharves in the town of B——, a gang of workmen were getting ready to cast the largest bell of the St. John's cathedral chime. Only an hour more, and they would let the glaring, bubbling metal, flowing from the huge furnace, into the mold, which was buried deep in the black earth close by.

It was just at evening, and in the gathering twilight the lurid blue flames that burst from the top of the tall chimney, flashed unearthly gleams upon the neighboring windows and house-tops.

The scene within the foundry was wierd and almost awful. The swarthy forms of the workmen, partly lighted by the yellow glare, moved about like Tartarean shadows, and the sooty beams and ponderous chains crossing, half black, half golden, under the glowing roof, recalled the engines of the Cyclops under Mt. Ætna.

The town clock struck six. It was time for supper. All the men threw down their tools, and ran and put on their outer clothing.

"Be back in half an hour sharp!" cried the forge-master. "We shall make the cast at a quarter of seven."

"All right, sir!" cried the men in response.

"I hear some of the town folks are coming down to see the work," said one.

"Yes," said another, "and it'll be something to open their eyes. There was never such a bell cast in the whole State as this one will be."

In a moment more only one workman and the master were left in the foundry. The former was to stay and watch the blast." He had brought a double allowance of dinner, and he would make a supper on what remained.

"Perhaps we can get the 'Inventor' to stay with you, George," said the master, laughingly, as he prepared to go.

"Yes, where is he?" returned the man, in the same jesting tone.

"He's been round the works long enough to know when anything goes wrong. Hollo! hollo! I say! Where's the 'Inventor?'—Come here! Ah, there he is!" And in silent answer to the summon, a shock-haired fellow, with large gray eyes, and a pale, vacant face, appeared from behind a pile of castings. He had on his back a gray shirt much soiled with dust, and he wore a pair of huge pantaloons, held up by a single suspender.

"Well, Mopus," quoth the man George, slapping him rather roughly on the shoulder, "suppose you've got wit enough to help yell if anything's the matter?"

The young fellow looked stupidly around and nodded his head.

"Then sit here and look at that furnace, and don't take your eyes off!"

The poor lad smiled, and meekly did as he was ordered—just as an obedient dog would have laid down to watch his owner's coat.

A queer fellow was this "Mopus;" stupid enough in ordinary things to need a world of watching, but withal wonderfully fit to watch a furnace. He knew all the working of the foundry, by what seemed a sort of brute instinct, though really his strange sagacity in this was a remnant of a once bright mind. If anything happened or went on in an unusual way, he would always notice it, and say what ought to be done, though he could not tell, perhaps, why it ought to be done.

Two years before, he had been an intelligent, promising lad. He was the son of a designer connected with the foundry company, and had always been allowed free access to the shops, and to mingle with the men and watch their work. But one day a great lifting-chain broke, with its load, and an iron fragment struck him on the head, inflicting a dangerous injury. From this he partially recovered, and only partially, for his reason was impaired. But his natural love for machinery and mechanical experiments remained, and as he regained his bodily strength, he spent most of his time making small wheels and shafts, and putting together odd contrivances, which he would exhibit with immense pride and satisfaction.

This peculiar trait in the young fellow gained for him the humorous title of the "Inventor." All the men felt a great kindness for him, even though their manner toward him was occasionally harsh and impatient.

Such was the person left to help watch the great blast for the casting of the king bell of the chime of St. John's. Faithfully [illegible] kept his place before the furnace, w[illegible] man George sat down at a little di[illegible]ce and began to eat his supper. Dou[illegible] the latter intended to keep a ger[illegible]ght, but he certainly made [illegible] the inventor's eyes do the most of the [illegible]g. Whether he felt a kind of [illegible]less trust in the instinct of his half-witted companion, or indolently concluded that nothing wrong could happen, he was sadly to blame for charging himself so little with the important duty before him.

Not a word was said by either watcher, and only the deep roar of the furnace was heard through the vast foundry.

George finished his supper, and sauntered into one of the tool shops to find his pipe. "Inventor" sat alone before the great blast. The one rational faculty of his feeble mind enabled him to comprehend what it meant, and even something of the magnitude of the enterprise that was ripening inside those burning walls. He knew that the furnace was full of valuable metal, and that close beside him, buried out of sight in the deep sand, was the huge mold, so soon to be filled with the precious cast. He knew and could see that all the channels for the flow of the fiery liquid were ready, and that near the mouth of the furnace stood the long iron rod that was to be used when the moment came to let on the molten stream.

All this his limited thoughts took in by habit. Dimly conscious that something great was to be done, he sat with his eyes on the furnace, absorbed and intent.

Suddenly something startled him. There was a slight noise, and a burning crack appeared near the top of the furnace. Then another crack, and a scorching brick fell out and rolled to the ground at his feet!

The lad opened his mouth to shriek, but so terrified was he that the sounds stuck in his throat, as if he had been in a fit of nightmare.

A thin red stream followed the fallen brick, and trickled down the furnace side like running lava. Then came another alarming noise, and a thin gap half-way down the masonry let out more of the hissing metal.

Where was George? Was the unfaithful fellow still hunting for his pipe? The furnace was bursting, with only a half-idiot lad to guard it.

What could he do? He did what perhaps a lad in his right mind would not have dared to do. Rushing to the mouth of the furnace, he seized the long iron sod that stood near, and tapped the vent. One desperate thrust with the sharp point up the terrible funnel, a few quick, prying strokes! Stand back, now! The confining clay fell away, and the yellow-white flood spurted out with resistless force. It leaped into the clay-lined troughs, and hissed its way, flaming, down to the mouth of the bell-mold.

The "fool" had done a deed worthy of a general on a field of battle.

Was it too late? Every moment new fissures opened in the doomed furnace. Some of the upper stones toppled over. Still the metal poured out into the mold. But the waste was great from those gaping flaws. The pressure was relieved by the opening vent, but the leaks multiplied continually. It was art running a race with ruin.

Poor "Mopus" stood powerless before the coming catastrophe. His knees knocked together, and his head swam. A great heap of red-hot bricks and rubbish fell at his feet. He had barely thought to get out of the way and save his life. He heard a wild shout of human voices in the distance, then an awful roar behind, and he saw and felt himself pursued by surges of seething fire.—Sharp, blistering pains pierced his flesh at a hundred different points. The rest was all a horrible, unintelligible dream. It was as if he had suddenly sunk into the earth and been swallowed up forever.

By seven o'clock comparative quiet reigned again on the scene of disaster. Ruins lay everywhere. The engines had quenched the flames that had caught the building, and the men, blackened with smoke, stood in silent groups about the remains of the furnace. It had fallen to pieces, and nothing was left but heaps of steaming rubbish.

Poor "Inventor," who had been found with the tapping-rod in his hand, lying on his face in the sand, frightfully burned, had been carried to his home.

Little was said, but the few words spoken, uttered with no mild emphasis the natural wrath of the master and the hands against the man George, whose excuse for himself only exaggerated his offense.

"See what he has done," said they a few days later, as they stood in the self-burned foundry. "Five thousand dollars gone to waste in a minute! The best job in twenty years spoiled! The rascal, to go hunting for his pipe, and leave that stuttering idiot to watch! Is that all he can say for himself? Out upon such carelessness! Why, the boy didn't even know enough to bawl out when he must have seen the furnace tumbling to pieces!"

The master who had more at stake than the men, of course felt the loss more keenly than they. Suddenly something peculiar caught his eye among the debris, and he cried in a startled voice!"

"Hallo! What's this? What's this?"

He snatched up a fragment of one of the troughs which had led from the furnace to the mold. There were traces of the stream of bronze still running in it. Then the possible meaning of the iron found in the injured boy's hand flashed upon him.

"Bring me a shovel, quick!" he shouted.

A spade was put into his hands, and he began nervously to heave away the hot mass that lay piled over the bell-mold. It was a herculean task, but he worked like a giant, and three or four of his men took hold and helped him.

Brick-bats, ore, slag and ashes flew in every direction. Presently the master's spade penetrated the sand and touched something hard. He stooped down. Then he leaped up like one half frantic, and, plying his spade with redoubled energy, tore away the remaining sand, disclosing what looked like a great metallic ring.

"Men," he cried out, lifting his flushed face, "the bell is cast!"

"Who did this?" asked every excited voice as soon as the cheering died away.

"Come with me, two or three of you!" cried the master. "I think I know who did it. It's a miracle!"

They hurried away to the home of the half-witted boy. The attendant met them with her finger on her lips.

"The poor lad is in a brain fever," she said.

"Does he say anything in his delirium?" whispered the master.

"O, yes, he raves all the time about the big bell-mold. 'I hope it will fill—I hope it will fill,' he says."

The men exchanged glances. It was indeed true. The idiot had cast the great bell of St. John's. Just then the physician came out.

"Perhaps he will recover his reason by this shock and sickness," he said. "Such things have happened."

"Do you think so? Pray Heaven he may!" solemnly ejaculated the master and his men; and they turned away, deeply moved.

Two months later the great bell hung from a huge derrick in the lathe-room of the factory, and beneath it stood a heavy truck, upon which it was about to be lowered. A silence fell upon the group of workmen as the pale face and feeble form of "Inventor" appeared, borne in on a small reclining chair. He had recovered his reason, and was fast getting back his strength. His large gray eyes instantly fastened themselves on the bell, that splendid masterpiece, whose making meant so much to him. They told him the whole story of the casting, and the disaster in the foundry, but it all sounded like a wild romance to him.

"I remember nothing that happened," said he, shaking his head with a smile. "It's all new to me, all new and strange—so strange!"

"Yes," said the master, devoutly, "it was God's hand."

Every eye was turned on the invalid.—Some of the men felt afraid, it was so much like a resurrection to have him there among them, the boy they had known under-witted, now a young man keen and intelligent, as if changed into another being.

"I should like to strike the bell once," said he. Two men lifted him up, and put a small hammer in his hand.

He struck one gentle blow. A deep, sweet, mournful tone, solemn as the sound of distant waterfalls, rolled from the great bell and echoed through the foundry. Tears filled the eyes of the rough men as they heard it.

"Ah," said the master, "there's a hallelujah in that, and it may well begin here. Long may this bell praise God! He saved it in the ruins of the furnace, by one wise thought in the ruins of a human brain. Our furnace is rebuilt, and behold, this dear boy has his reason again! The bell and the boy shall glorify God together!"

"Amen!" murmured all the listeners.

Then the great bell was lowered, and as the truck rolled away with its melodious burden, the boy was lifted and carried after it and both went out into the sunny day together, the rough men standing in the doorways waiving their hands.

Little "Inventor" afterward well proved his claim to the title so lightly given him in his unfortunate boyhood. His name is now read on many a bell, whose matchless richness of tone his genius and skill in metals alone created.

The Temperance Campaign in Pennsylvania.

Correspondence Between James Black and Charles Heritage.

LANCASTER, Sept. 27, 1875.

SIR:—Whereas, at the State Prohibition Convention, held at Harrisburg, June 17, 1875, Charles Heritage, of Philadelphia, appeared and in due time declared he was in full accord with the objects of the convention, and during its progress made speeches and offered resolutions. And when the platform was adopted, and the candidates selected, declared his approval and adhesion to the Prohibition party, and was therefore, placed upon the State Committee and Executive Committee, and met with and deliberated with the Executive Committee, and invited and held a meeting of the committee in his office in Philadelphia.

And whereas, the said Charles Heritage has since seen proper to withdraw the names of the Prohibition candidates from his paper, which is the exercise of a privilege, and to oppose their election which he may properly do, if actuated by honest convictions.

But, whereas, the said Charles Heritage has not had the openness nor manliness to resign, and it is certainly unbecoming that his name should be connected with the management of a cause which he has deserted, if not betrayed, and has done and is doing all in his power to injure.

Therefore, as chairman of the State and Executive Committee, I direct that you cause a copy of the above statements to be served on said Charles Heritage, and summon him to meet the Executive Committee at Prohibition Club Rooms, No. 33 North Ninth street, on Tuesday, the 28th of September, at 11 o'clock A. M., in the city of Philadelphia, to show cause, if any he has, why his name shall not be stricken from the roll of said committees.

(Signed) JAMES BLACK, Ch'm.
To I. NEWTON PIERCE, Sec'y.

OFFICE OF THE Temperance Blessing
No 37, 39, N. Seventh St., Phila.,
September 29, 1875.

JAMES BLACK, ESQ.

Chairman of Phohibition Executive Committee of Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir:—I have received from I. Newton Pierce, Esq., Secretary of your Committee, a copy of the above letter, and as it is an arraignment of my course in a semi-public capacity, I take the liberty of replying to it in this manner. I do this, as much because I have done nothing that, as an advocate of temperance, I wish to conceal, as because of the fact that I am convinced the committee over which you preside has no disposition or desire to do justice to me, or to any man, who differs from its very peculiar policy. You, and those acting with you, will readily understand why I entertain this opinion; and as the people of Pennsylvania have no interest in our personal matters, I leave the assertion to stand without elaboration.

It is true that I did attend the State Convention of the Prohibition party at Harrisburg, took part in its proceedings, and expressed myself satisfied with the candidates nominated. I believed then, and still believe, that Messrs. Browne and Pennypacker are sincere, able and devoted advocates of Christian temperance reform. But as soon as you and your committee commenced to "lay the wires" for a campaign in Pennsylvania, I saw that your object was alone the gratification of personal ambition and animosity.

Almost your first step was an announcement that your purpose and desire was simply the defeat of the Republican candidate for Governor. You also, through your committee, endeavored to injure me personally and in my business. Why you did this I do not know, unless you found me one of those temperance men who are unwilling to "crook the pregnant hinges of the knee that thrift may follow fawning." I became convinced, as did thousands of others, that the cause of temperance, a cause only second in sacredness to that of the Christian religion, could not and should not be prostituted to individual purposes; that it would be both sinful and silly to render it, by perversion and trickery, an aid to the success of the Democratic party, an organization that by precept and practice is and always has been as diametrically opposed to temperance reform as infidelity is to Christianity. Being so convinced, I did not hesitate to express my convictions, and I have claimed no part in your councils. I did not remove the names of the temperance candidates from my paper because I loved them, or the cause they championed, any the less, but because I was not willing that you and your following should gather glory or gold by a fictitious advocacy of their election. This is my offence, if such I have committed, and is your grievance, if such you have suffered. As a Christian and an advocate of temperance I believe my course was and is right, and I therefore can offer no apology for it.

This whole Temperance campaign, as conducted by you, is a flimsy cheat. You have confessed that you have no hope of electing the candidates nominated at Harrisburg, good and true men as they are, and that your purpose, therefore, is to use them to defeat General Hartranft. In doing this you will succeed, if you succeed at all, in alienating the friendship of the great Republican party from the temperance movement in Pennsylvania, and when this end is accomplished where are we to look for that aid in our work which we have long hoped and prayed for, and which we so much need? Certainly we can expect nothing from the Democratic party of this State, as that party is openly and avowedly against us. The work you have in hand, therefore, is designed, according to your own showing, to result in serious, almost irreparable, injury to a cause which has all my sympathy, all my devotion, and to which I have given years of hard and thankless labor. I cannot consent to become a partner to such a scheme, or an assistant in its consummation. You may pursue your path if it suits you, and you can reconcile it with the line of Christian duty, but I beg leave to remain faithful to a cause which I love more than personal ambition or pecuniary gain.

You are at perfect liberty to strike my name from your roll whenever it suits you to do so, and you may make all the parade about the proceeding that your vanity desires. I shall enjoy God's kindness and many blessings just as thoroughly when deprived of all association with you as I did when you courted my confidence and solicited my support, and I shall continue my temperance work with as much zeal as ever. Your influence may induce some slurs to be cast upon me, and some who have been my friends may turn from me. But I can still pray that men may be made better, and I can go to the fallen of my kind and give them a helping hand toward a purer and holier life. I like this kind of temperance labor better than that taught and practiced in your political school, and therefore my deposal from your sanhedrim will bring me no regrets.

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES HERITAGE.

The Danger.

One of the strongest objections that can be urged against the destruction of the present national banking system, and which does not seem to have been considered by the advocates of an exclusive greenback currency, would be the annual wrangling that would transpire at each session of Congress over the volume of currency necessary to meet the requirements of trade and commerce. In the great West, where land is cheap and the tendency to speculation very great, there has ever been an unceasing demand for more money. Men who live by speculative ventures have little consideration for what is regarded in business circles as the stability of the future. Anything that will advance present personal interests is all that they require or care for. The man who has his means invested in a legitimate business, if he understands his true interests, is actuated by no such considerations. He requires stability in purchasing values, and which cannot be reached outside of a gold basis. Nine months were spent by Congress in the discussion of this financial question last winter, and the uncertainty incident to which unsettled all kinds of business, and should not be again repeated. For these, among other considerations, we have always favored the withdrawal of all the greenbacks from circulation. Congress should have nothing to do with the currency beyond securing the holder thereof against loss, should the banks fail. Were all the "greenbacks" withdrawn from circulation, Congress would have no need to say another word upon the subject of finance. Under the "Free Banking Law" every community that needed a bank could have it. The responsibility of redeeming their circulation, as provided for by law, would rest upon the banks themselves. The city national banks are required to keep on hand twenty-five per centum of their deposits in greenbacks, and country banks fifteen per centum. The volume of greebacks is at present so large that this can be done without difficulty. But when the government has reduced the volume to a point that they can redeem them in gold, the responsibility of the national banks will be increased. Gambling in the precious metals will not be half as amusing to them then as it has been in the past, and they will say to the gamblers that it must cease. The combinations of the former will be too strong for the latter, and they will have to seek some other calling. Under this united action of the national banks, which must necessarily follow resumption by the government, the country will gradually come to a specie basis, without the slightest jar or inconvenience to business interests. We shall then find ourselves standing upon a rock foundation. Congress will have no further need to meddle with the question. The people can increase or diminish the volume of currency at will, and we shall have the safest, best, and most convenient purchasing medium, as well as the most perfect system of banking, the world has ever witnessed. The Republican party is the author of this grand scheme. Let it be perfected by the minds that conceived and the hands that framed its several provisions. Stand by the Republican party.—American Republican.

The Maine Election.

[From the Kennebec (Me.) Journal, Sept. 22.]

The complete returns from the election will dissipate some errors into which a few commentators upon the Maine election have fallen. It is not true that the Republican majority in this State is the smallest which has been given since the party came into power twenty years ago. The majority for General Conner will be about 5,000. In 1862 the Republican majority was but 3,770. The next year, however, the majority bounded up to 17,582; in 1864 it was 19,180; in 1865 it was 22,787; and in 1866 it went up to 27,382. Thus the smallest majority ever given by the Republicans of Maine was in 1862, and that was followed by some of the largest majorities that the party has ever achieved.

Again, when the full vote appears we shall see that there has been no change among the voters. The Democrats have not cast so large a vote this year as in some other years. It will not be so large as the vote for Kimball in 1872, or for Pillsbury in 1868. They have simply succeeded this year by dint of great effort, secret canvassing, and the free use of money, in getting out to the polls a large share of the voters which belong to their party. Their policy was to steal a march upon the unsuspecting Republicans, in which they have been more successful than they ought to have been. There have been no changes in favor of the Democrats,—but there has been a failure to bring out the Republican vote, while the Democrats have brought out theirs in pretty full strength.

It is a great mistake to attribute the reduction of the Republican majority to a "tidal wave," or to any cause that will permanently reduce the Republican majority. The Republican majority in years other than the Presidential election year may fairly be reckoned at from 8,000 to 12,000. This year it will be 5,000—a result not very depressing to Republicans, nor one from which well-informed Democrats can obtain much comfort. The Democrats played a smart game and lost—thanks for the Republicans who were not caught napping.

Their success has thoroughly awakened the Republican party, who now see that twenty years of victories cannot be depended upon to carry present and future elections, and that vigilance and activity must be practiced every year if we would have round Republican majorities.

ANOTHER argument for inflation is presented by the Nashville American:—"Farmers and mechanics and hard-working tradesmen, do you know the meaning of these cabalistic terms of the bondholders, "five-twenties," "seven-thirties" and "ten-forties?" Why, simply this, in effect—that you shall get up at 5:20 and not quit work until 7:30, so that the bondholders need not get up until next day at 10:40.

THE New York Tribune puts the matter in a very strong light when it says that the Democratic State committee of Pennsylvania and the Democratic candidate for Governor, have both made the blunder of beginning the campaign with a string of apologies. One tries to excuse itself for abandoning "the old Democratic doctrine of a sound and stable currency." The other tries to persuade the country that the Erie platform does not mean what it says. That is a bad start.

WHEN the railroad corporations tried to defeat the bill which relieved the real estate of Pennsylvania from taxes, every true friend of the farmer supported the measure, and every tool of the monopolies either voted against it or ran away. Pershing "dodged!" (See Legislative Record, 1866, p. 231.) He now seeks the farmers' vote. Hadn't they better "dodge" him?

A truthful Democrat remarked the other day—"He didn't see any necessity for a change respecting the occupancy of the Gubernatorial chair, for Hartranft is a good Governor." Just so—and men like him should assist the Republican party in keeping gallant John F. Hartranft in that position for another term. This is not a good time to swap horses, and especially for one that has been on the course so often and beaten as often, to-wit—C. L. Pershing, the Democratic nag.

ARE the Independents awakening to a realization of the fact that they have all along been playing into the hands of the Democracy? It would seem so; and even so influential an Independent as Carl Schurz has had the good sense to acknowledge his error by taking the stump in Ohio for the good Republican cause, which is pretty sure to win a glorious victory. He but lately returned from a visit to the Fatherland. What did he see there that knocked the scales from his eyes? We were glad when Carl left, but now we are glad that he has returned. Who'll be the next?

HARTRANFT and Rawle clubs are being organized in almost every town and borough in the State, and the campaign grows hotter and hotter every day.

Review of Fashions.

In those eras of fashion when there was little reference to common sense, and no appeal to any one's convenience, designers' fancies took the kingdom by violence. The only word they desired for a battle crying was Revolution, and novelty was the idea eliminated from every thing that fashion touched. Last year's styles and last year's toilettes were of so little consideration four years ago, that ladies were amazed when the over skirt, for instance, was again and again remanded, and yet, to all practical purposes, remained a favorite. Gradually, a perpetuity in forms has become more popular, and there is now a prospect that American dress will become a standard and fixed authority abroad as well as at home.

A brief review of styles, as they exist at the beginning of a new fashion period, may assist the independent woman of the household in utilizing material and observing practical economy, while the most acceptable modes of dress are offered for selection. Little change is seen in skirts; full-dress, demitoilette, and bell-shaped forms, designed for the street, affording the shapes reduired. Unnecessary fullness is still avoided at the fronts and sides of all these models, the limit of close draping being decided by every individual for herself. A severe criticism condemns the use of the bustle in Paris; the most fashionable modistes there-reject the ungraceful protuberance in vogue both here and there at present, substituting in its place a crinoline which extends the hem of the skirt in such a manner that the circumference of the hips is but little increased, while the slope from the waist downward is exceedingly graceful. Tabliers remain, but are restricted to house toilettes more or less showy, and are simulated chiefly by tracings and exquisitely-embroidered patterns, as well as by puffings and light dispositions of lace and crepe upon evening costumes. Over-skirts abound; every possible model of single, double, and triple square aprons being in vogue, while shirred, pleated, plain, and elaborately trimmed rounded aprons are still popular. Additional draperies for evening dresses are frequently in the form of a tunic rather than an over-skirt of a particular design.

Basques exhibit every conceivable effect, the cuirasse model supplying a common basis for all varieties. For cloth costumes, i. e., camels' hair, knickerbocker suitings, etc., long fronts are in vogue; for silks, cashmeres, etc., short fronts, round or square, and showy, deeper backs, are the forms preferred. A decidedly popular shape, to be trimmed with lace or fringe, has the side-bodies at the back extended so as to form sash-ends, which are either drawn through each other in a loose loop, or they are caught together lightly, and are fastened at the point of the waist at the back by a showy knot and loops or ribbon. A basque model for velvet, with silk sleeves, shows the simple cuirasse sloping upward from the front to the centre-back, where it is extremely short. A novel fancy in completing a dressy basque is to fill in the Pompadour neck with black guipure lace when that is appropriate, and to lace it up at the front, also simulating a lacing at the back by the use of narrow, velvet ribbon. The material, it will be seen, governs the selection of the basque-shapes altogether. Sleeves are exceedingly small, and somewhat shorter than familiar styles; deep, double and triple cuffs, and all showy designs, are sought after, one model, called the "funnel" shape, showing extremely flaring cuffs turned half to the hand and half to the shoulder. Two varieties of sleeves are offered for evening toilette. One exhibits a shirred band made to flare, being "stayed" with crinoline muslin to preserve its form; the other has a sleeve fitting the arm very closely, and terminating at the elbow with a fall of crimped pleating, filled in with tulle or lace. Bows of ribbon are placed in equalette form on the first-mentioned model; the other shows a double bow of ribbon, with notched ends placed just above the point of the elbow, upon the outside seam of the sleeve.

A great many vests, sleeves, collarettes, revers, and coquettish epaulettes are made of velvet whenever this fabric may be used; and, whenever it is possible, revers are held by buttons, the handsomer the better. Pockets are a "rage" once more, and are made in every possible form. Chatelaines also, sometimes called aumonieres, are brought back, and made to accompany all full-dress costumes. Fichus, long, pointed both at the front and back, are caught in a pleat at the back of the neck, and finished with a bow of ribbon, with long, floating ends. These trifles are extremely popular, and being tied in negligé manner low upon the breast, are almost universally becoming. Evening dresses are masses of flounces, lace, perpendicular puffs, separated by pipings of velvet, and draperies which are adjustable by loopings, rather than by being "fixed" in any precise mode. With the introduction of winter suitings, the popularity of polonaise styles will be determined. It is certain that rich fabrics will be presented in this form, one of the most elegant models imported being called the Esmeralda Pelisse. For the first light wraps required by chilly autumn days, Parisian authorities recommend round capes made from the same material as that used for the costume. These are simple circulars, which reach nearly to the knee, and are elaborated only by bows of ribbon with long ends, placed at the back of the neck, and also at the point of closing in front. A graceful, negligé toilette for morning shopping exhibits such a wrap made of clan plaid in heavy shades of green. Its fastening is a huge clasp of antique silver, the bow at the back being supplied by silk matching the darkest tint of green seen in the plaid; this, in turn, being faced with the plaided fabric. Imported capes of this kind are called "plaids," pronounced as if the word were written "plade."—Domestic Monthly for October.

Here is a warning to swearers: A man named Louis Berk, who lived in Burkville, in this county, a few days ago indulged in very blasphemous language because his crops had been destroyed by high water. He cursed God for having his crops destroyed last year by heat and drought, and for destroying them this year by flood, and concluded his blasphemy of the Creator with the expression, "God Damn him!" His tongue clove to the roof of his mouth, and he died the next night, never uttering another word.—[Henderson (Ky.) Reporter.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

PHILADELPHIA Oct. 7, 1875.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN: — Returning homeward from New York you pass through a portion of Fairmount Park, as you enter Philadelphia. In point of size, beauty of location, and natural scenery, Fairmount is confessedly the finest park in the world. The beautiful Schuylkill river bisects it. The weird and winsome Wissohickon flows through its northwestern portion, adding a natural variety, grace and beauty, which, to the lover of the beautiful, is appreciable but indescribable. On the western side of the Schuylkill is the Belmont mansion, rich in historical associations, and now the famous eating house for aristocratic Philadelphia and her visitors. Half a mile to the southwest George's Hill sits overlooking the park and the city, and, with its beautiful flower garden, seems like a crown of glory. On the same side of the Schuylkill, and between the river and the railroad, is the Zoological Garden, already the leading one in this country, and destined in the near future to rival the great ones of London and Paris. There are many entrances to Fairmount Park, but the fashionable one for carriages is by way of Girard avenue, and over the Girard avenue bridge, an iron structure of great architectural beauty, the roadway for carriages on which is nearly one hundred feet wide. There is no doubt but that in a short time the broad spirit of improvement which poured out the money to buy the ground, will erect therein such works of art and engineering as will make it rival the beautiful Central Park of New York, in those matters, as thoroughly as she now exceeds her in size and natural advantages. This much of the park, of which I did not intend to speak at all, except as the ring in which our great jewel the Centennial is to be set, which shall be the great central object of the grand celebration which the people will hold over the hundredth anniversary of the birth of a "government of the people, for the people, and by the people." The Centennial will be the occasion on which the Northern, the Southern, the Eastern, and the Western man will join hands in mutual brotherhood, forgetting the disagreements and conflicts of the past, remembering only the benefits which have accrued to all men under our form of government, the distinctive glories which we have won as individuals and as a nation, and looking forward to the second centennial (which none of us shall see) when American individualism shall have gained greater practical and scientific attainments, and when under our system the best attainable good for the poor shall have been achieved. Holding all this in our hearts, we will wish the good Ship of State God speed on her second run, and vow once again to ourselves and to each other that "a government of the people, for the people, and by the people, shall not perish from the earth."

The buildings in which the Centennial Exposition is to be held are in a sufficiently forward state to be sure of being ready at the proper time. In size they are simply immense, the main one being more than a third of a mile in length and nearly an eight of a mile in width. I was informed that an additional one would have to be erected to accommodate the increased demand for space from foreign countries. Machinery Hall is on the same plan of construction (the pavillion) as the Main Building, and is almost as large. Memorial Hall, or Art Gallery, is a beautiful granite structure four hundred and eighty feet long and three hundred and sixty feet broad, and is intended to be permanent, the funds for its erection having been contributed in part by the State of Pennsylvania. Horticultural Hall is to be a permanent building. Entirely of stone, brick, iron, and glass, it [illegible] ing of beauty, and may it last for- I shall not go into a detailed description of the architectural beauty of these buildings, nor yet of their manner of construction. In both of these respects they have abundantly satisfied the leading architects of the country.

Three thousand workmen are employed on and about the work. A double-track narrow-guage railroad is to run around the whole, so that a visitor can go to all of them with but little expenditure of strength in reaching the different departments.

Among the novelties being erected there is an elevator one hundred and fifty feet high (near Belmont Mansion), from which can be had a fine view of the buildings, park, city, and adjacent country. This is being put up by some enterprising Bostonians. We have been full of interest in this matter from its inception, but now that great success is assured, now that we know that there will be a grand display of American productions and resources—of the products of the mine, the soil, and the skilled hand, as would alone repay any one for a visit—and add to this the knowledge that the Old World is coming here to contest with us for superiority in those manufactures which both make, and to introduce to us her productions which we do not make, and we know that there will be such a display as the world has not yet looked upon. Feeling all this, our interest has grown into unbounded enthusiasm. Let then, every man and woman, who can do so, begin now, if it be necessary, to economize and lay by a sum sufficient to take them to Philadelphia next year, and, standing within the portals or neath the shadow of old Independence Hall, renew their attachment to their liberty and free institutions on the very spot of their birth.

Yours,
WANDERER.

MILESBURG, Oct. 11, 1875.

MR. EDITOR.—Thinking a few lines from our vicinity might be of interest to your intelligent readers, I embrace the opportunity to shake a few from my faltering pen. In the first place, I wish to tell you that Cicero has risen from beneath the clods of the valley. He has surely risen from his couch—the tomb. It must be him. He was in Bellefonte. He came from there. He entered Bullick's Academy for Brown music. He mounts the rostrum. He raises his head to the rolling worlds, but alas, it is as soft as his heart. He dips his tongue into the liquid lightning. He throws his voice into the bellowing thunders and proclaims to the breathless multitude that the Republican party must be buried and the Democrat party hurled so far into oblivion, that, from the heights of Bellefonte, Gray Meek will burst his eyeballs trying to catch a glimpse of the wonderful "solvent." Again he said, "let us form a new party." Who but a Cicero would have made such an immortal proposition? I cannot conceive a suspicion to inform me how he ever said it; it is a mystery; it is involved in obscurity; it must be a quotation from the other world. Well, he is a spirit; however, you had better "go hunt him up," and if he has got the gaps, ram a horse tail down his nostrils, and pull out those demigods of inner darkness; but be very careful in the act, or you might knock "Adams apple" off the limb, and then he would never become a Congressman, but a Cainsman. Again, "He spoke as never man spoke"—scattered. His nonsense was like a stone pile, on the top-rough and woven, and underneath full of quakes, lizzards and twenty-five bottles of untouched liquors. This is your Cicero. This must be his name. When he passed me, I heard bones rattle; so it is either him or a ghost, or a butcher, or a bone picker. Suffice it to say, that no harm has been done. Hartranft's popularity has increased considerably within the last week, and still the ball rolls on.

We notice that our highly esteemed Dr. C. L. Addleman, is amongst us once more. He has been absent for some weeks, acting in the capacity of a surgeon—which is his home. Milesburg has needed a good physician for some time, and now as they have assertained that their hopes have been prefaced with such a realization, they propose to calm other calls which have been made, and keep him within distance of their shackeled trames; and he bids fair to make his horse drum the roads that stretch their arms from the centre of the village.

Some few days ago we observed the man at Wagner's Mill, trying to place in position the large stack which was to adorn it. Scarcely had they succeeded in swinging the same, which weighed near two tons, ere the chain broke, and fell within three feet of two men with a terrible crash. The mill is being hurried to completion.

We had the pleasure of listening to Rev. Wm. Gwynn's sermon last Sabbath, on "The Robber." I am told that he is an extemporaneous sermonizer. If such is the case, it is not wonderful to conjecture why those gray eyes appear like torches hung on swinging chandeliers. His mind has complete control of his voice, and his voice has complete control of his audience, and not unfrequently does he sway them as the wind sways the forest leaf.

Rev. Richard (Baptist minister) has taken up his residence in the centre of the town, and may the people entwine about him, until they entwine about the church triumphant.

The citizens are very much engrossed in politics, and Hartranft shall rule supreme.

MORE ANON.

Hartranft And Temperance.

The article published by us, a few days since, detailing the actual relation of the Republican party to the temperance question, has stirred a number of honest-minded temperance people to the careful consideration of the subject. They see that it is entirely possible to be right in principle, but to erroneously apply the principle, because of lack of full or accurate information. One such communicates to us that he had pledged himself to work for Browne, but that he is "under conviction" and wishes two questions solved. 1. Should he not vote for the professed temperance ticke? 2. How can we satisfactorily explain Governor Hartranft's course, in signing the repeal of the Local Option law? We will try to explicitly answer these questions.

1. We think it wise to work and vote for temperance, in a way likely to produce practical and favorable results, rather than merely follow the leading of professed but mistaken temperance men. If it be true that the Republican party has given the Commonwealth all the temperance legislation it has had, and that it has been generally faithful to this idea; and if it has been further true that the Democratic party has been hostile to temperance; and if the effect of voting the Prohibition ticket is merely to help the Democratic and injure the Republican party, is not a vote for Mr. Browne practically a vote for rum; and would not a vote for the Republican party be in the interest of temperance? We can see but one answer to this, and that, that a vote for Mr. Browne, while not so intended, will really go to the liquor interest.

We subjoin the following extract from the New York "Christian Advocate," the official organ of the M. E. Church in this country, as bearing directly on this question:

"Last of all, among the political factors of the times, comes the temperance question. A portion of the very best of our citizens have judged it expedient to make the prohibition of the liquor traffic their sole governing idea in disposing of their suffrages; and as neither of the chief parties come up to their standard, they have drawn off from both, and set up for themselves. Of course, there is no rational hope that they can succeed in electing their candidates; and, therefore, the immediate result of their action is to withdraw from the election a part of the best moral and political elements of the community.

"When a party recognizes the fact that it contains a considerable temperance element, its platform and its nominations will be made with respect to that element; but if that is withdrawn and arrayed in opposition, then, since that vote is hopelessly alienated, policy may incline it to favor the anti-temperance element. But these good people seem to have made up their minds that no bread is better than a half loaf, and so that available somewhat is to be sacrificed for an idea. And here, again, the Republican party seems likely to be the loser, since nearly every prohibitionist is drawn out of that party, and of course, its aggregate vote is diminished just to the extent that the third party shall swell its vote. The Democratic party has the confidence of the free liquor men, and will recive their undivided vote, and every temperance vote is equal to half a vote for the same party; the Republican party has not the favor of that portion of the temperance men, and will not recive their support."

2. We hold that Governor Hartranft could do nothing else than sign the bill repealing the Local Option law. We preferred that he should not do it, but we fully recognize the compulsion that caused him to give his signature. The Governor is merely the executive of the will of the people; and the will of the people, in this country, is sure to become the law of the land. For a Governor to set up his will against a Legislature which clearly represents the views of the people, is to assume arbitrary power, which would not, for a moment, be submitted to. The Lower House of last Winter's Legislature was elected on the temperance issue. Some of the men elected by the aid of the temperance people, and whose names were on their tickets, voted for the new law on its final passage. In twenty-five of the forty-one Local Option counties, men were elected to the Legislature in the interest of the repeal of the Local Option law. What then? The popular branch of the Legislature repealed Local Option by a two-thirds vote, and urgently demand its perfection into law. The Senate modified the substitute as far as possible, and the bill thus passed went to the Governor, as the views of a Legislature, the popular branch of which had come from the people, elected on this express issue. We hold, as do all lawyers and persons versed in the requirements of Government, that under the circumstances, the Governor had no option but to sign the bill.

The only question that can be raised, as an offset to this, is the fact that he vetoed special legislation. This was done under the operation of the same rule. No one will pretend that any Legislature was ever elected to consummate special legislation. On the contrary, popular sentiment was strongly against it. When Governor Hartranft entered upon the gubernatorial office, the people were preparing for a Constitutional Convention, the chief aim of which was to utterly prohibit special legislation. The Governor, in this, respected the will of the people, and at once vetoed all objectionable special legislation, and cut down the evil to very small limits. This was done, as will be seen, under this identical rule, that required him to sign the repeal of Local Option. Our temperance people should remember that their interests are far more safe in the hands of a party which has always respected them, and of a Governor who respects the popular will, than of any person the Democratic party can put forward.

Bellefonte Markets.

BELLEFONTE, Oct. 13, 1875.

The usual supply of goods has been laid in by our merchants for this season of the year, and, if we should judge by the throng of wagons in the streets, the most of the time, the merchants ought to be doing a fair business; and as a further evidence, we do not hear complaints about hard times, as were proclaimed some time ago.

WHEAT—The demand for wheat is fair, and the price at our quotations is firm. The prospect for wheat in the future is favorable. The reports from the West show that a portion of the crop has been damaged, which makes the price in some of the Western towns as high, and in some of the cities higher, than it is here. The freights from Chicago to New York is less than it is from Bellefonte to Baltimore or Philadelphia, which markets have been the basis of our prices here for years, with some exceptions.

CORN—There is still a surplus of old corn in the county, with very little offerings. Farmers are already soliciting customers for the new crop, but there are no buyers willing to make a price. Last year the first sales were made at 65 cents per bushel out of the field, but prices this year will be materially below that figure. Those who have the best corn well husked, will have the preference with buyers. There is a dark red corn in the county, of which buyers are very shy. It is late maturing and is apt to mould in the crib, if not well dried before leaving the field.

OATS—There is a large crop of oats in the county, and the farmers are not favorably impressed with the prices offered. But there being no demand for shipping, except in chop, the millers have some advantage over this crop.

RYE—There is some offering, but the price is nominal, there being very little demand.

HAY—The demand for hay is limited, but the crack farmers expect to get full prices before the winter is over. Prices are now irregular, but our quotations give prices about as near as we can obtain them.

POTATOES—There is a very large crop of potatoes in the county, and some of the farmers are anxious to sell, but the highest price we have heard of being offered is forty cents a bushel by the wagon load.

What Farmers Should Manufacture.

It is not advisable for farmers to engage in the production of anything except food. That is their legitimate business, and, if intelligibly conducted, it will, in the long run, pay a reasonable per cent. for any investment they make in it. Of the more important industries, to say nothing of wool growing, the manufacture of butter and cheese, can be made to pay much better than the raising of grain, which costs so large a per cent. of the cost of the production to get it to market. The American Agriculturist puts the relative profits of raising corn for market, and in keeping cows for cheese, in strong contrast, as follows:

"A well fed cow will yield over $50 worth of cheese in a season of six months, while thousands of acres of the best native grass lands in the West are plowed up yearly to make fields for the everlasting corn. $50 worth of cheese can be sent to an Eastern market for $2 in freight, but $50 worth of wheat or corn will cost $30 in freight, leaving in one case $48, and in the other but $20 for the farmer's profit."

The average price of butter the year round, at the home market of each farm, is at least twenty-five cents per pound, while that of cheese is at least fifteen cents per pound. It may be said that farmers have not the capital with which to begin enterprises of this kind. In many cases it may be true; nevertheless, what was true at one time is not true now, owing to a different condition of things. The organization of farmers into granges will enable them to do, in a co-operative way, what heretofore has been a difficult matter to accomplish. By contributing a limited amount of cash capital to erect buildings, and to hire an experienced overseer, who understands either the making of butter or cheese, farmers would, at the end of the year, find that they had realized much more than by grain raising. Taking all things into consideration, we do not believe there is a better State in the Union for the production of butter and cheese than Kansas. If butter and cheese can be produced where land is worth from $100 to $200 per acre, and the profits are sufficient to pay the transportation on the same five hundred to a thousand miles, can it be doubted that the same butter and cheese could be produced on our cheaper lands, with little or no transportation, and be made to pay, and to pay well?

An important feature in connection with the dairy business, is that of being able to realize cash from the sale of dairy products at any time of the year one wishes to sell. In this respect, our present system of grain farming is defective. The paying of ten per cent. for the use of money while the crops are maturing, and a greater per cent. by buying on credit, instead of paying cash, thus securing a great reduction in price, will keep the farmers of the West in a continual state of anxiety, as to how they will be able to meet current expenses and further obligations.

If farmers will diversify their system of farming, and vary and increase their number of farm products, we have every reason to believe that a new era would be inaugurated, and that farming, conducted in a business way, would be found to pay.

How Farmers' Wives Break Down.

A woman tells this story in the Boston Cultivator, and many can testify to their own knowledge that it is very sadly true:

"I can get forty women to marry me, within fifty miles of this village," said a man to me the other day, "but I can't find a woman anywhere who will come and help my wife, and she is breaking down everyday." Yes, breaking down! Can any one look in her ashy white face, and not read the story written there, of hard work, in season and out of season? She has four little girls—the eldest six years old, and the youngest three months. Her husband keeps six cows, and cultivates a farm of a hundred acres, employing two hired men to aid him. Three meals must be cooked daily for a family of seven, not counting the baby; four children dressed and cared for; the milk of six cows attended to, and butter made, while the weekly washing and ironing must be accomplished in some way. From four o'clock in the morning until ten, and sometimes eleven at night, one pair of hands and one pair of feet perform this labor, and now the tired body rebels and says: "This cannot be endured."

Let me tell you of another case: The farmer and his wife have three children, all under eight years of age. He employs two hired men, boarding them, and keeps eleven cows. A woman comes in to do the washing and ironing, but that is all the assistance the wife receives, except the few steps her children can save her. She must rise at four o'clock and prepare breakfast, so that her husband and the hands can be in the mowing field at five. Every other day, however, one of the hired men remains to do the churning for her; but this favor was not allowed her until she had threatened to call in the doctor, to declare to her husband her inability to do such hard work. Then it was reluctantly conceded, although two forty-pound firkins of butter were packed each week; for our farmer prides himself upon his herd of cows—pure blood Alderneys—and sells his butter at the highest rates, carefully depositing its proceeds in the bank, and rarely giving his wife so much as a five dollar bill of it. His last injunction to the hired hand as he departs to the field is: "John, come just as quick as you can. Don't let Mrs. M—— keep you for anything else. Hay can't wait for woman's work." There are dishes to wash, milk to skim, pans to scald, beds to make, children to dress, baby to nurse, rooms to sweep, and dinner to cook over the boiling hot stove, and one woman to do it all!

Ten Rules For Farmers.

1. Take good papers and read them.

2. Keep an account of farm operations.

3. Do not leave the implements scattered over the farm, exposed to snow, rain and heat.

4. Repair tools and buildings at a proper time, and do not suffer subsequent three-fold expenditure of time and money.

5. Use money judiciously, and do not attend auction sales to purchase all kinds of trumpery because it is cheap.

6. See that fences are well repaired, and cattle not grazing in the meadows, orchards or grain fields.

7 Do not refuse to make experiments, in a small way, of many new things.

8 Plant fruit trees well, care for them, and of course get good crops.

9. Practice economy by giving stock shelter during the winter; also good food, taking out all that is unsound, half rotten, or mouldy.

10 Do not keep tribes of cats and snarling dogs around the premises, who eat more in a month than they are worth in a lifetime.

Coal ashes sifted very finely, thoroughly ground, and mixed with oil, make a good cheap paint. Any coloring matter may be added.

THE average yield of crops in Ottawa county, this year, is estimated as follows: wheat, per acre, 25 bushels; oats, 50 bushels; hay, 1½ tons. They average bettr than before, for five years.

WHEN a lamp explodes or is upset and the oil takes fire, great difficulty is experienced in extinguishing the flames. Water does harm, for it will spread the oil and increase the area of fire. A cloth thrown over the blaze will stifle it, and so will loose earth, but these are not often at hand. The best check to an oil fire in such emergencies is flour, and it is generally accessible. Liberally scattered over burning oil, it absorbs the fluid, deadens the flame and can readily be gathered up and cast out-doors when the fire is extinguished. This fact is worth remembering in these days of kerosene accidents.

MANHOOD: HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

Just pub'ished, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, etc.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only six cents.

The celebrated author, in the admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates from a forty years' successful practice that the alarming consequence of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, can be effectually cured, cheaply, privately, and radically.

☞ This book should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The Medicine That Cures

—IS—

VEGETINE.

Taking into consideration the character of its vouchers, the history of its cures, and the immense increasing demand, Vegetine may be fairly entitled the leading medicine of the age.

For scrofula in the blood, Vegetine is an infallible remedy, and no person need suffer from tumors, ulcers, and all diseases arising from impure blood, if Vegetine is used according to directions. There is not a case of scrofula in existence that Vegetine will not cure, provided, however, the vital functions have not lost their power of action, all that may be said to the contrary notwithstanding.

Vegetine is pleasant to the taste, mild in its influence, and absolute in its action on disease, as the following unquestionable evidence will show.

January 2, 1875.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq:

Dear Sir: When about 6 months old I was vaccinated. The parties who were vaccinated from the same virus died from the humor. The humor spread over me to such an extent that I was rolled in bran to prevent me from scratching my person. The disease finally settled in my head. I remained in this condition about twenty years, troubled all the time with sores breaking in my head and discharging corruption from my ear. At this time a small kernel appeared on my neck, gradually increasing in size until a tumor formed of such immense size I could see it by turning my eyes downward. All this time I was taking various remedies for my blood without any substantial benefit. I then went to a prominent physician in Boston who, during his treatment of six months, lanced the tumor eight times, which cost me nearly $400. This left me with a rough, aggravated sore, without at all diminishing the size of the tumor, and in a sickly, feeble condition. I consulted another physician in Natick, who, after considerable time, succeeded in healing the sore without reducing the size. At this point I commenced to use Vegetine, through the earnest persuasion of a friend. After I had taken this medicine about one week I experienced wonderful sensations. My whole body seemed to be undergoing a radical change, until, finally, the tumor broke and discharged frightful quantities. From this time it decreased in size until the bunch disappeared, but my neck still bears the ugly scars of the sore and lance. I am now healthy and strong and able to work every day.

I will also mention that I have been an acute sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism ever since I can remember, until commencing the use of Vegetine, when almost immediately all rheumatic pains ceased. This statement I volunteer for the purpose of benefiting other suffering humanity, and you will confer a favor by giving it as much publicity as thought proper.

Very gratefully,
O. M. SAVELS, Ashland, Mass.

What is Vegetine?

It is a compound extracted from barks, roots, and herbs; it is nature's remedy; it is perfectly harmless from any bad effect upon the system; it is nourishing and strengthening; it acts directly upon the blood; it quiets the nervous system; it gives you a good, sweet sleep at night; it is a great panacea for our aged fathers and mothers, for it gives them strength, quiets their nerves, and gives them nature's sweet restorer—as has been proved by many an aged person; it is the great blood purifier; it is a soothing remedy for our children; it has relieved and cured thousands; it is very pleasant to take—every child likes it; it relieves and cures all diseases originating from impure blood. Try the Vegetine. Give it a fair trial for your complaints; then you will say to your friend neighbor and acquaintance, "Try it; it has cured me."

Report from a Practical Chemist and Apothecary.

BOSTON, January 1, 1874.

Dear Sir: This is to certify that I have sold at retail 154½ dozen (1852 bottles) of your Vegetine since April 12, 1870, and can truly say that it has given the best satisfaction of any remedy for the complaints for which it is recommended that I ever sold. Scarcely a day passes without some of my customers testifying to its merits on themselves or their friends. I am perfectly cognizant of several cases of scrofulous tumors being cured by Vegetine alone in this vicinity.

Very respectfully yours,
AI GILMAN, 468 Broadway.

QUINTUPLE PICTURE of the CENTENNIAL

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE CENTENNIAL GROUNDS.

Mr. Thomas Hunter, of Philadelphia, whose admirable series of Lithographs has done so much towards awakening interest in our National Celebration, has published a picture containing the five principal buildings on one sheet, also a Bird's-eye View of Fairmount Park with the buildings in the foreground. Nothing could more fully supply the information sought by those interested. The Quintuple represents all the buildings on a large scale, with sufficient detail to convey to the mind some of their magnificent proportions. The BIRD'S-EYE VIEW is by far the most faithful representations of the Park yet printed. Every building whose plan and position have been determined, every ravine, fountain, and tree, is correctly drawn.

These pictures are indorsed by the Centennial Board of Finance, who afforded the publisher every facility to make them accurate, and who have distributed them largely in every civilized country on the globe. Aside from their merit as works of art, their interest now in prospects of the Celebration, and as mementos when that event is over, entitles them to a place in every household.

Mr. Hunter's list now comprises the following: 1, Art Gallery; 2, Main Building; 3, Horticultural Hall; 4, Machinery Hall; 5, Agricultural Hall; 6, Bird's-Eye View; 7, double (Nos. 1 and 2 on a sheet); 8, triple (Nos. 1, 2, and 3 on a sheet); 9, Quintuple (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 on a sheet). All uniform price, 50 cents each. Sent free by mail, securely packed. Prices in quantities, $4 00 per dozen, and 40 cents for postage; $30 00 per hundred; $200 00 per thousand; and less in larger quantities. Sent C. O. D. by express or on money order.

Wright's Rejuvenating Elixer.

For the restoration of Nature's forces. It gives new life and vigor to the aged, and causes the blood of youth to course through the veins. It effectually cures Impotency, Palpitation of the Heart, Loss of Muscular Power, Low Spirits, Disorganization of the Generative Organs, and all the train of ills that follow in the path of the transgressor of Nature's laws. Price $2 per bottle.

It will be readily understood that in the brief space afforded by the advertising columns of a public print, it is impossible to give all particulars of the diseases that may be cured by the CHEROKEE MEDICINES. That they are destined to become immensely popular is plainly obvious in consequence of their

GREAT INTRINSIC MERIT.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"How a Journal of Fashion can combine fashion and literature at very low terms is well shown by this periodical. The May number, besides a colored Fashion Plate, has thirty-six pages, profusely illustrated, on the fashions of costumes for ladies and children, seasonable fabrics, trimmings, millinery, lingerie, coiffures, and domestic art, and yet with all this there is room for poems and tales, by popular authors, notices of new books, etc., and the price of all this matter is only $1.50 per annum. Take it all in all, we know of no periodical of which readers get so much for their money as those of the 'DOMESTIC' MONTHLY."—N. Y. Evening Mail.

"If one wishes the latest information concerning the latest fashions, the 'DOMESTIC' MONTHLY is ready with the intelligence, aided by abundant illustrations. It does not, however, neglect current literature, as it contains poems, a serial story, some interesting miscellany, and art notes."—N. Y. World.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR-DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

TASTELESS MEDICINES.

A prominent New York physician lately complained to DUNDAS DICK & CO. about their Sandalwood Oil Capsules, stating that sometimes they cured miraculously, but that a patient of his had taken them without effect. On being informed that several imitations were sold, he inquired and found his patient had not been taking DUNDAS DICK & CO'S.

What happened to this physician may have happened to others, and DUNDAS DICK & CO. take this method of protecting physicians, druggists and themselves, and preventing Oil of Sandalwood from coming into disrepute.

PHYSICIANS who once prescribe the Capsules will continue to do so, for they contain the Pure Oil in the best and cheapest form.

DUNDAS DICK & CO. use more Oil of Sandalwood than all the Wholesale and Retail Druggists and Perfumers in the United States combined, and this is the sole reason why the pure oil is sold Chesper in their Capsules than in any other form.

OIL OF SANDALWOOD is fast superseding every other remedy, sixty Capsules only being required to insure a safe and certain cure in six or eight days. From no other medicine can this result be had.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S SOFT CAPSULES solve the problem, long considered by eminent physicians, of how to avoid the nausea and disgust experienced in swallowing, which are well known to detract from, if not destroy, the good effects of many valuable remedies.

Soft Capsules are put up in tin-foil and neat boxes, thirty in each, and are the only Capsules prescribed by physicians.

Tasteless Medicines.—Caster Oil and many other nauseous medicines can be taken easily and safely in Dundas Dick & Co's Soft Capsules. No taste. No smell.

——The Senatorial conferrees met again at Tyrone on Thursday last and balloted several hundred times without making a nomination. They stayed till Saturday evening and came home.

——The Rebersburg brass band furnished the music for the Fair last week. The members of this band are all pleasant gentleman and good musicians. Their playing was complimented on all sides.

——No court this week; Judge Elwell could not come and the great trial—City of Philadelphia against Smith, Roads & Smith—is postponed. This was the only case on the list for this week. There are twenty cases to be disposed of next week.

——On Friday afternoon last, during the progress of the races, Ellis, an interesting little son of Colonel Austin Snyder, in attempting to cross the race course, was struck by a passing vehicle, which knocked him down, the wheels running over his body. He sustained some severe bruises, but none were fatal and he is convalescing.

——Sechler & Co. keep constantly on hand the largest and finest assortment of groceries, earthen and crockery ware to be found in Centre county; also all kinds of country produce. They pay the highest prices for butter and eggs. Farmers when they come to town should remember this; also that they can get the most good goods for the least money than can be purchased at any other store in this town or county.

——When a man joins the Junior Sons of '76, it is said that he swears allegence to it, and absolves himself from all ties that bind him to either of the old parties. Now, Levi Munson declared that he was not a member of this order when he was seeking the nomination before the Democratic convention. Are there not at least a thousand Junior Son's in the county, who know that Munson lied, and what do they think of a man who is ashamed to own the company he keeps, and what do the honest Democrats think of a man who will seek office as a Democrat, while he is sworn to obey the commands eminating from a secret body, and to follow such a line of policy as they may work out.

We shall see how gullible the Democrats are after the election.

Falling into Battle Line.—A meeting of Republicans was held in the Council rooms on Monday night for the purpose of organizing a Hartranft Club. At seven o'clock the room was filled to overflowing, and a crowd standing on the landing outside, unable to get in. The meeting was called to order by John G. Love, Esq. S. Parker, Esq., was elected temporary President, and Mr. Love, Secretary. The books were opened and over a hundred names enrolled as members of the Club. When Mr. Love stated that on next Saturday the Club would have the pleasure of receiving his excellency, Governor John F. Hartranft, the building shook with the cheering. The additional facts that Ex-Governor James Pollock and Hon. E. Joy Morris would be present and address the mass meeting on Saturday evening, was received with hearty outbursts of applause. Committees were appointed to procure a Club room, another on paraphernalia, recruiting officers were appointed, committee on music designated and everything put in order for the establishment of one of the largest and most enthusiastic Hartranft Clubs in the State. In the mean time Gen. Beaver, and Mr. Daniel Rhoads made their appearance, and their presence was greeted with tremendous cheers. Republicans kept coming in and enrolling their names so fast that Mr. Love was obliged to call D. S. Keller Esq., to his assistance to get the names down. The meeting adjourned late in the evening with three rousing cheers for Hartranft and Rawle and the county ticket. Yesterday, (Tuesday) the names of scores of others were enrolled among the list of members, and another meeting was held in the evening. The committee on permanent organization reported the following officers:

President—Daniel Rhoads.
Vice Presidents—Edward T. Tuten, Gen. James A. Beaver.
Recording Secretary—John W. Morris.
Corresponding Secretary—Geo. L. Potter, Jr.
Treasurer—John Irwin, Jr.

When Mr. Rhoads took the chair cheer upon cheer greeted him. The reports of the recruting officers were read and between two and three hundred names were reported. The committees reported, everything was satisfatory in the extreme, and the enthusiasm was intense. Word was received that the Republicans of Milesburg, Curtins Works, Zion, and Pleasant Gap were organizing Hartranft Clubs, and would attend the grand rally on Saturday evening in full force. It was unanimously voted to have a grand torch light procession on Saturday evening. The enthusiasm was so great that many people left the corpse-like assembly of Democrats in the court house and came over to the live, wide awake Republican meeting in the Council rooms. We went to press before the meeting adjourned and cannot give further details. Let the Republicans understand that the grandest demonstration Bellefonte ever saw will take place on Saturday evening next. It will be a demonstration that will warm the heart of our gallant Governor and make the Democrats shake in their boots. Hurrah for Hartranft, Rawle, and the entire Republican ticket of Centre county!

Autumn Days.—They have come again with all their calm, sweet glory and glowing brightness. Silently they come, and ere we had missed the loving smiles of the summer queen, they—these glorious autumn days—were ushered in. Like some sweet spirit from Eden land, who glides from our presence unseen and unheard by us, so these golden hours come, and now linger over our earth with their bewildering loveliness. We have a faint perception that the grand old summer has forever gone, and yet we cannot mourn over her faded flowers while dreaming amid the autumn glory. It was true that we loved the bright, beauteous days that were crowned with summer loveliness—it was true that we were entranced by the golden glory of the past, but the memory of the "by gone" is not so fresh and beautiful as the gloried present.

Fine Paintings.—In the windows of S. A. Brew & Son's store, next door to the post-office, are displayed two handsome portraits, one of the late venerable Thaddeus Brew, father of Mr. Austin Brew, of this place; and the other of the late Miss Mary Nolan. They are both exceedingly life-like. The noble, genial face of the old gentleman is so natural that you almost involuntarily look for his pleasant smile and kindly salutation. The portrait of Miss Mary Nolan, while it is very good, is not half so lovely as she was in life. These portraits are the work of Mr. Thomas Nolan, of Washington, D. C., who is an accomplished gentlemen, at present visiting friends in this place.

——The Gazette and Bulletin asks: "Have you joined the Hartranft club?" to this question we feel ourselves compelled to say no.—Bellefonte Watchman.

Thank goodness, for decent people will now have no fear of joining.—Gazette & Bulletin.

Hundreds of hard-working, honest men have joined the Hartranft Club in Bellefonte, and still there's more to follow. Look out for the grand torch light demonstration in honor of our present and future Governor on Saturday evening.

——Canned fruits of every description at Sechler's famous grocery.

——Try Sechler's Chocalate Caramels—they are delicious.

——Don't forget the grand meeting and torch light parade of the Hartranft Club on Saturday evening. The Governor himself will address the meeting.

——Business men should remember that now is just the time to make a specialty of advertising. When money is scarce or times dull, people are more on the alert for bargains, and watch the advertising columns more closely than usual.

Death of Attorney General Dimmick.—The following dispatch was received here yesterday morning:

Harrisburg, Oct. 12, 1875.

Wm. P. Wilson, Esq.—Attorney General Dimmick died last night. His remains will be taken to Honesdale to-night.

John B. Linn.

The funeral will take place on Friday next at Honesdale. We have no room for particulars this week.

A Fact Worth Knowing.—Are you suffering with consumption, coughs, severe colds settled on the breast, or any disease of the throat and lungs? If so, go to your druggists, F. P. Green and J. Zeller & son, and get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. This medicine has lately been introduced from Germany, and is selling on its own merits. The people are going wild over its success, and druggists all over our country writing us of its wonderful cures among their customers. If you wish to try its superior virtue, get a sample bottle for 10 cents. Large size bottle 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it.

Personals.—Editor Kinsloe, of the Clinton "Republican," and Toby Abrams, the reformed Jew, both of Lock Haven, were at the fair on Thursday.

—Governor Hartranft will speak at the mass meeting in the Court House on Saturday evening, October, 16.

—The Right Rev. M. A. DeWolf, Hon. Bishop of Pennsylvania, will visit this parish on Friday, October 15. Services at 7:30 P. M.

—Paddy White, the plumber, died on Wednesday last and was buried on Saturday morning.

—Mr. John McKee, a brakeman on the B. E. V. freight train, while coupling a car in this place on Monday, had his thumb smashed.

Senator Wallace's Insult to the Junior Sons of '76.—The '76ers of Centre Co., who think of voting the Democratic ticket at election, should read the opinion entertained by Senator Wallace of them. The Senator, in a speech made before a Democratic mass meeting in Clearfield on the evening of Sept. 30th, in referring to the Junior Sons of '76, said: "I am opposed to all secret political, oath-bound organizations. I despise and condemn them. The Junior Sons of '76, an insignificant organization of this stamp, is springing up in this State. They meet in lofts, cellars, and other dark places and concoct schemes calculated to do the body politic great injury. When I see a Democrat connect himself with an organization of this character, I am forced to conclude that there is a lack of true manliness in his breast. I advise you, my friends, to flee from such an organization, like rats from a sinking ship."

——In the leather department at the fair last week, that which attracted the most attention and won the most praise, was the stock of boots and shoes displayed by Mr. John Powers, of Bellefonte, whose large and elegant store is in McLain's block, opposite the Bush House. Mr. Powers' display consisted of a great variety of boots and shoes, suitable for men, women and children. They were of all paterns, designs, sizes and prices, and they were all made in his own manufactory. No establishment outside of Philadelphia has won such a reputation as Powers, for making a durable, easy, elegant, neat-fitting boot or shoe. His custom is not confined alone to Centre county. Whoever he makes a boot or shoe for once, becomes his patron ever after wherever he may be. This article is not written as a paid puff for Mr. Powers, but in justice to his superior ability and success in the manufacture of boots and shoes.

Weakly and Sickly Persons.—Many persons who are weak and sickly at this season of the year are at a loss to know what will restore their health. It has lately been found by experience that the use of Speer's Port Grape Wine when taken in moderate doses is one of the best restoratives known. Physicians, clergymen and temperance advocates should encourage the use of the Port Grape Wine, and thus aid the cause of temperance and moderation. It is especially recommended to families for its purity, exquisite flavor and healthy properties. Medical men certify to its valuable medicinal powers. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in preparing and perfecting this wine, and it requires a four years' process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist.

Our druggists have procured some direct from the Vineyard. It is excellent for females to use, especially for those with nursing infants.

J. Zellers & Son, Agents, Bellefonte.

——Best five-cent cigars in town at Green's.

The Fair.—Now the excitement of Fair week is over, generally speaking, it was a success; financially, a great success. The weather, in the main was excellent. Tuesday, as usual, was a day of preparation, and did not amount to much. Wednesday brought an immense crowd of visitors, and, on Thursday, there were more people on the grounds than were ever present before at any one day's exhibition of the Society. Over four thousand persons were within the enclosure on Thursday afternoon. The departments of the exhibition were uneven in their display. The stock department was unusually small, although there were some fine specimens present. The fact is that all good blooded cattle in the county had been on exhibition for so many years that the owners were ashamed to bring them any more. Like the old stagers in the menagerie, they had grown grey in the service of the circus. One of the rules of the society forbids stock exhibitors from taking their entries away until Friday afternoon of Fair week. Keeping them there so long, is accompanied with some trouble and expense, and operates against the society.

The home department, under the superintendency of Mrs. Mary Valentine, was the most complete of any. It was well managed, and the display was excellent. The good taste in arrangement and the prevailing harmony of articles and colors was remarked on all sides.

The display in the field, orchard and garden department was moderately good, but not up to some exhibitions of the Society. The quality of the display perhaps has never been surpassed, but in quantity frequently. Taking the exhibition as a whole, considering the hard times, the utter failure of last year on account of bad weather, and the threatening condition of the weather on Tuesday and Wednesday, we must say that the Fair greatly exceeded the expectation of the management. Financially the society is now placed on a sound footing, and no crippling debts are left to worry the executive committee. In the line of 'amusements,' there were the usual amount of trials of speed, base-ball, foot races and other sports which, perhaps, were about on a par with previous years. The military display on Thursday was a most interesting feature. The State College Cadets, commanded by Col. A. Grabowskii, reached Bellefonte about nine o'clock, and were met by Co. "B" 5th Regt. N. G., Captain O. W. VanValin, and escorted through our principal streets, and out to the grounds. In the afternoon the cadets were drilled in the presence of the multitude and reviewed by General Beaver and staff. They presented a splendid appearance, and evidenced, in every movement, the excellent descipline which alone can bring any body of men to the degree of perfection displayed by the Cadets. The little boys of the Preparatory department of the college, in full uniform conveying light shot guns, seemed to be the special pride of the college authorities, and were admired by all. Captain VanValin's company also looked well in their new uniforms. The company is composed largely of veterans of the war and of course they were at home in all their movements.

The Milliken prizes attracted more people, furnished more amusement and bred more excitement than anything else. The contest of throwing the shoulder-stone took place on Wednesday. The committee who conducted the contest were Mr. John P. Harris, Captain Austin Curtin, and Hon. Fred Kurtz. There was a large number of entries, and an immense crowd to see the throwing. The Milliken prize was won by Mr. Harry S. Hale, of Bellefonte; the second prize was won by Alexander Ganes, of Howard township; and the third by Mr. C. Dale. Mr. Hale threw the shoulder stone a distance of 33 ft. The Rifle shooting contest took place on Thursday under the direction of Hon. C. T. Alexander, Maj. S. H. Yocum and John I. Thompson, Esq., committee. There were twice as many entries for this contest as for any of the others, there being representatives of four counties present. The Milliken prize was won by Mr. J. Donahue, of Clearfield county, who made an 11¼-inch string; the second prize was won by James Teller, of Milesburg; and the third by W. Sharp.

The Milliken walking contest took place on Friday at noon. The judges were Mr. Wm. P. Duncan, D. F. Fortney, Esq., and Dr. George F. Harris. The contestants started from the score at a signal given by a pistol shot, at five minutes before twelve o'clock. The distance, five miles, or fifteen times around the track, was accomplished by Mr. Charles Schroyer in 47 minutes, entitling him to the Milliken Medallion; the second prize was won by Mr. Chas. Guyer, of Lock Haven; and third by Mr. Charles Gummo, of this county. Mr. Wm. Thomas, the pleasant little baggage-master at the depot, was one of the contestants in this race. By a mistake in the number of circuits of the track, "Billy," thinking he was on the fifteenth round, when it was really the fourteenth, struck a slower gait and came in with the crowd—only one round short. His friends raised him a purse equal to the third prize, which was presented to him on Friday evening. Mr. Milliken was present during the several contests and manifested great interest and pleasure in the success of the sports. The prizes were awarded in the court house on Friday evening. A large audience was present. President Jno. A. Woodward presided. Secretary D. S. Keller, with appropriate remarks, presented the walking prizes. D. H. Hastings, Esq., presented the shoulder stone prizes; and President Woodward, the rifle shooting prizes. A. O. Furst, Esq., in a complimentary speech moved a vote of thanks to Mr. James Milliken. the motion was seconded by Judge Orvis and carried with a storm of aye's. Calls from all parts of the court-room brought up Mr. Milliken, who spoke briefly of the motives which induced him to offer these prizes. At the close of his remarks, a prize bat and ball was presented by D. H. Hastings to the State College base ball club which won the championship of the county in the series of games played during the week.

We must compliment the officers of the Association on their indefatigable efforts to make the Fair a success. President Woodward and Secretary Keller were busy day and night, and deserve great praise; so does the executive committee.

——Governor Hartranft, Ex Governor Pollock, and Hon. E. Joy Morris, will positively speak in the court house on next Saturday evening.

Pleasant Gap, Oct. 11, 1875.

Editor Republican.—A few lines from our little village may be acceptable to your readers. Nothing of special importance has occurred since your last from "Looker On," but a noticeable abatement of the dread disease to which he referred has taken place. Our esteemed citizen, William Riddle, is dangerously ill. The M. E. church, under the supervision of Rev. Galbraith, is progressing rapidly. Such manifestations of determination and energy, we do not often see on the part of our clergy.

The latest sensation, however, is Wm. Brown's speech on Saturday evening last. It was the most successful attempt to ride two horses that we have been permitted to witness for some time. If Barnum should hear of this noted personage, no doubt he would pay a much larger amount than he is said to have received for his services. When we read in your paper that said W. W. Brown was making political speeches for the Democratic party, we put it down for "Campaign talk," but when we heard him urge Democrats, Republicans, and all to vote for Pershing and Piollett, then we knew what kind of an animal was before us, for in spite of the sheep's clothing the wolf-claws would stick out.

The meeting was rather a quiet affair. The audience manifested no enthusiasm except when the speaker attempted to ridicule General Beaver, by endeavoring to imitate him in his position of prayer, at which he made a very poor stagger, and no friends. Victor.

Editor Republican.—Please announce that I am not a candidate for office of "Coroner" on the "Republican" or "Junior Son's" ticket, and much oblige. Yours Respectfully,

Our fellow townsman, Mr. Christian Derr, has been a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Treasurer for several years, but has been invariably sold out by his pretended friend, P. Gray Meek. Mr. Meek has had it in his power to make the nomination for Mr. Derr, but has continually sacrificed him for the purpose of advancing his own interests as an office-seeker, which is the basest ingratitude that one man could perpetrate on another. The facts are, that, after Mr. Meek became half owner of the Watchman, his course as a writer and politician became so obnoxious to the balance of the owners that they required him to buy or sell, they offering to take twelve hundred dollars, provided he could give a note with a satisfactory endorser. After making considerable effort among his relatives who were abundantly able to assist him, among whom he failed, he called on Mr. Derr, who was then a merchant of Bellefonte with ample means for his business, who, after some consideration, endorsed the note, which enabled Mr. Meek to obtain entire control of the Watchman, and lay the foundation for his present apparent prosperity.

Things have changed since then. Mr. Derr has been overtaken by fire and other loss, and is poor. He has passed the meridian of life, and is out of employment. He has been a life-long Democrat and is capable of filling any county office in the gift of the Democracy, but could not be nominated because Mr. Meek would not yield his claims for the Senate, and the county delegates were not willing to give more than one candidate to Bellefonte. No person knew this better than Meek, yet he encouraged Mr. Derr privately at every opportunity, and between times was holding conferences at the Centre County Bank in the interest of Dan Musser.

This is only one more item in the history of Mr. Meek showing that he will always sacrifice his best friend, if by so doing he can promote his own chances for office.

It was only ten years ago that the majority of the people of Pennsylvania would have rejoiced in the depths of their hearts to have seen Cyrus L. Pershing branded as a disloyal subject, who had used his influence against the maintenance of the Union and suppression of the Southern strife. There is enough food for memory still existing in her burnt Chambersburg, in the myriad slabs at Gettysburg, in the yet visible signs of a predatory and merciless war, to prompt her citizens to a realization of the truth that their sufferings were created by the acts and influences of just such men as Pershing, and also to awaken in them a conviction that when the elements of disloyalty and treason have once taken possession of the soul of man, there is no power on earth adequate to the work of a thorough cleansing.

The Democratic papers make a sad mistake when they charge the Republican press with abusing Judge Pershing. Personally there is not a word said against him, nor have, so far as our observation extends, the Republican papers of the State entered into the work of personal abuse. But the political record of every man is a subject for examination, and upon it he should stand or fall, and upon this we propose trying the present candidates of the Democratic party.—[Reading Times

Cyrus L. Pershing is President Judge of what is known all over the country as the murder district. For the last two years scores of men have been shot down like dogs under his very nose by the Schuylkill county Ku-Klux, and not one of the cowardly assassins has been brought to justice. A judicial officer who has neither ability nor pluck to protect the lives of citizens in his own balliwick, is not fit to preside over the destinies of a great State.—Reading Dispatch.

Cyrus T. Alexander, Esq., and P. Gray Meek have perfect control of the Democracy of Centre county, but in order to keep themselves in this position they have sacrificed every one that voted with them last fall. They can pull the wires now to suit themselves, and the rank and file have to submit or be read out of the party. Derr and Lucas, fall in, or off comes your heads.

——Frank W. Hughes, the author of the Erie platform, at a speech made in Clearfield last week, said: "The character of Governor Hartranft for honesty, integrity, and patriotism cannot be successfully impeached."
